New Business:

- Carol Black – offered the idea of honoring Gail Rothrock for her years of service to HARC.
 - Ivy proposed that HARC pursue proposing Gail Rothrock for recognition as an Alexandria Living Legend. Carol volunteered to work on the application. In addition, Carol suggested Gail’s recognition at a HARC meeting as has been done with past long-service members.
- Tyler Hale suggested a New Member onboarding process.
 - Ivy shared the information that the Alexandria Archaeology Commission is working on something similar and she offered to share it with HARC.
- Russell Simonaro inquired about 517 S. Washington and who purchased the property. Commission members did not know.

Old Business:

- Waterfront Pump Station
 - A third alternative is being proposed that involves a “split station” with a smaller building in the park and the pump station located in the 1 Prince Street Building.
 - Cost estimates are being made on two different options – the one site at 1 Prince or the split station. These estimates will be available by February or March 2026.
- Jones Point Lighthouse
 - Carol had a conversation with Don Beyer’s Chief of Staff and received good updates:
 - Brush has been cleared and the broken fence torn down.
 - Beyer does speak with the Superintendent on a regular basis.
 - Funding is in place for exterior renovations to begin in the fall, but the interior also requires restoration.
 - The protection of the boundary stone has been damaged and requires repair.
- 250th Fundraising
 - Raising awareness that 250th is here and would be good for organizations to know and take advantage of this anniversary.
- Murals

- BAR does not have purview over murals on buildings that have already been painted. As background for this discussion, a signage ordinance was passed this past summer allowing murals on painted buildings. BAR does oversee particular rules on signage. In addition, any proposal to paint unpainted masonry goes to the BAR.

Standing Committee Reports:

Alexandria Community Remembrance Project (ACRP) – Nigel Mease

- He was not able to attend the January 9th retreat. He is waiting for the minutes to share.

City Hall and Market Square Redesign – John Patrick and Carol Black

- An appeal has been completed with City Council. Carol Black and John Patrick attended the City Council session on the appeal of the redesign.
- The Council voted in agreement with both the City and BAR except in two significant cases.
 - 1) The BAR's recommendation to install lighter-weight replacements for the current ornamental chimneys was defeated after the head of the Department of General Services, in response to a question from Councilman Aguirre, said that providing structural support for chimneys as heavy as the current ones would bring the replacement cost to $200,000.
 - 2) The BAR's recommendation for a more colonial-style entablature and stone or cast stone above the entrance was defeated.
- Lighting for the 5th floor will only be for safety purposes.
- The architectural firm will work with BAR staff on suggested design elements for Market Square.
- Information on the renovation can be found at <https://www.alexandriava.gov/CityHall>

Board of Architectural Review (BAR) Update: Bill Conkey

910 King Street

- The applicant for 910 King Street has appealed the decision of the BAR to City Council. This appeal will be heard at the Council hearing this Saturday morning. The proposed scope of work includes new railings, metalwork at the roof, exterior lighting, signage, and painting/staining the building exterior.

333 North Fairfax Street

- The Board will hold the third Concept Review for the proposed townhouse development at 433 N Fairfax Street tomorrow evening. The applicant has made significant design changes in response to comments from the Board and would like their feedback before the project goes to the Planning Commission and City Council for approval. The revised design includes greater diversity in the style of the buildings and more traditional roof forms.

415 North Alfred Street

- The Board will also be holding a Concept Review for the proposed demolition of the existing building and redevelopment of the property at 415 N Alfred Street. The existing building dates from the mid-twentieth century including a significant renovation during the 1980s. The property will be developed to include five new townhouses.

601 Wythe Street

- At the BAR hearing tomorrow evening the Board will consider a request for modifications to the existing office building at 601 Wythe Street to convert the building into a multi-unit residential use. The modifications will include the addition of balconies and the replacement of all of the existing windows.
