Caregiver Tip: Recognize Symptoms of Common Medical Problems

Individuals with memory loss may forget how to perform daily tasks and are not always able to share their needs. This can present a problem in treating underlying medical conditions. For instance, forgetting how to swallow may lead to dehydration. Therefore, the National Institute on Aging has documented the following common symptoms that will help caregivers spot possible medical issues.

- Fever
- Flu and pneumonia
- Falls
- Dehydration
- Constipation/Diarrhea
- Incontinence
- Dental problems
