YOUR RIGHTS (cont.)

- Exercise all of your rights and receive help in exercising these rights.

- Receive fair pay in CSB employment programs unless you have agreed to volunteer in the program.

If you would like additional information, you may ask a CSB staff member or the Human Rights Advocate for a copy of Rules and Regulations to Assure the Rights of Clients in Community Programs.

SECLUSION AND RESTRAINT

The use of seclusion is not permitted.

The CSB is committed to using the least restrictive treatment intervention. Physical restraint is allowable in a time-limited emergency by trained staff until emergency service providers arrive. Physical restraint may also be used if it has been approved by the Local Human Rights Committee for use with a specific individual and its purpose is to prevent injury or death to the individual or other persons and/or to limit property damage.

VIOLATIONS OF RESPONSIBILITIES

In rare circumstances, it may become necessary to limit or discontinue treatment services to protect the health and safety of program participants and staff. Infractions have different consequences depending on the circumstances. Whenever possible, violations are addressed by a meeting with your service provider and reviewing or changing the service plan. In order to discourage violations, the following consequences may be imposed:

- A verbal or written warning
- Assignment of a special task such as a presentation to a group or counselor
- A meeting with a supervisor
- Direction to move to another room or office
- Denial of a requested pass or requested take-home medication
- Temporary suspension of services until there is reasonable assurance that the behavior in question is resolved and will not happen again
- Termination of services by the program

- Ensure that your own behavior and interpersonal relationships remain non-disruptive to any treatment program or setting.
- Participate in program activities as described in your specific program's description and orientation. Communicate appropriately with staff regarding situations that affect your program participation/attendance.
- Follow all laws and posted regulations when in any CSB building and when on any CSB property.
- Do not bring any weapons in any CSB building or on any CSB property.
- Smoke only in designated smoking areas outside. Most facilities are smoke free. Smoking is allowed only in designated areas.
- Refrain from the possession of illegal drugs or alcohol on any CSB property.
- Cooperate with any safety procedures or emergency preparation procedures initiated by staff to protect or promote your well-being or that of other people.
- In addition to these guidelines, you may receive guidelines that are specific to the program you are participating in during that program's orientation.

VIOLATIONS OF YOUR RIGHTS

If you believe your rights have been violated, first, discuss the problem with your provider or other staff member in the program. If this does not resolve the problem, ask to speak to a supervisor. By making staff aware of your concerns, it is likely that the problem can be resolved.

Second, if you are uncomfortable talking with program staff or you were unable to resolve your problem by talking with them, contact the CSB's human rights advocate at the number listed in the next section of this handbook. The CSB human rights advocate will offer to meet with you within one business day of receipt of your complaint and help you exercise your rights and work to resolve the problem. The CSB human rights advocate will also notify the Virginia human rights advocate of the complaint. You may also contact the Virginia human rights advocate at any time at the number listed below. After talking with you and investigating as needed, we will make a decision and written action plan within ten days.

Third, if you are not satisfied with the results obtained by the steps above, you have five days to notify the human rights advocate or the executive director and request further investigation.

If this does not resolve the situation, you may send a written request for a hearing to the Local Human Rights Committee (LHRC) at the address shown in the next section (you may also contact the LHRC at any time). The LHRC will schedule a meeting to try and resolve the problem. The meeting will be held with you, anyone who is assisting you, the human rights advocate and the CSB executive director or his designee. Ample time will be allowed for the LHRC to obtain all necessary oral or written information about the case. The LHRC will notify you of their decision within 10 days of the meeting.

Fourth, if you are not satisfied with the findings of the Local Human Rights Committee, you may contact the Virginia human rights advocate at the number shown below, and appeal to the State Human Rights Committee.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES AS A PROGRAM PARTICIPANT

To maximize the effectiveness of our services, and for your own health and safety and that of CSB staff and fellow program participants, we expect everyone to share responsibilities by following certain guidelines.

The most important thing you can do to ensure a beneficial treatment experience is to be an active partner in your own treatment. That means getting involved in your treatment and helping us to maintain a safe environment for everyone by honoring our commitment to each other and following these guidelines:

- Participate in the development of your treatment plan.
- Tell staff any information that might be relevant to determining what treatment or services will benefit you. We request that you inform us about medications, other services or treatment received and information pertaining to your health care, such as a pregnancy.
- Treat others with respect and dignity, which includes preserving the confidentiality of other people.
- Treat program property and the property of others respectfully.
- Refrain from behavior that causes or can contribute to physical harm, or the threat of physical harm.
- If you use drugs or alcohol, manage your substance use in a way that does not interfere or conflict with the treatment or services being provided and in a way that is not disruptive to any treatment setting in which you participate.
