Pursuant to Section 54.1-402 of the Code of Virginia, any determination of topography or contours, or any depiction of performance of the maps.

Land that may have the potential to contain significant archaeological materials: All development requiring a site plan, development special use permit or erosion control plan shall follow the Archaeological Protection Procedure. (All shades of blue/purple.)

Land where only specific properties may have the potential to contain significant archaeological materials: All development requiring a site plan, development special use permit or erosion control plan on these properties shall follow the Archaeological Protection Procedure. (All shades of green.)

Land not included in Archaeological Resource Areas: Site plans, development special use permit plans, erosion control plans, subdivision requests and rezoning requests are reviewed for archaeological potential at the time of submission.