

Finding Aid to the Carlton A. Funn, Sr. Display Boards Collection, 1950-2012

Quantity: 1,422 display boards, 53 unmounted posters, 7 framed pictures, 6 documents, 3 memorabilia, 2 card signs, 1 newspaper, 1 scrapbook, and 1 storage crate.

Biographical information:

Carlton A. Funn, Sr. (1932-2012) was working as a 7th Grade History teacher, in the Alexandria Public School System in the 1950s, when he began collecting material to supplement his school's history books to teach his class of 30 African American children. Born in Alexandria, Virginia on January 29, 1932, Funn was a Parker-Gray High School alumni. He received a B.A. from Storer College and an M.A. in Education from Virginia State University, before returning to his native Alexandria to teach in the public school system. The material he amassed grew into Funn's first exhibit, entitled, "The Afro-American Experience" and took his collection beyond his classroom. Funn conducted seminars on black history for Alexandrian policemen and presented his collection to the Virginia General Assembly. Funn's collection was used in a six week pilot black studies program in Alexandria in 1968, attended by 91 students and with Funn as one of the instructors. Alexandria Public Schools went on to provide further black studies courses at T.C. Williams High School for Juniors and Seniors. The collection continued to grow and expand its remit to include the achievements of all minorities, changing its name to "The History and Culture of Minorities", and then eventually to "National/International Cultural Exhibits (NICE)". Funn continued to collection material until his death in 2012.

Summary: The boards, posters, prints, signs and documents cover a wide range of subject matters and each board can address multiple issues. For the purposes of this finding aid each object has been assigned a main subject area. In two cases a board has been listed in two categories.

The objects have been individually catalogued into the Museum's collections database, PastPerfect, and multiple relevant subject headings have been assigned to each record. At the end of this finding aid is a listing of the subjects assigned in PastPerfect. These records are available for public searching on the Museum's online database.

The themes: African Americans, Famous; Asian-Pacific Americans, Famous; and Latinxs, Famous have been assigned when the object contains information about multiple people from different professions, etc.

The display boards use materials created from the 1950s to the 2010s and some of the information and language used is outdated and/or incorrect.
