The City of Alexandria's Fair Housing Testing Program identifies and helps eliminate discriminatory housing practices in real estate sales, lending, and rental housing based on race, national origin, familial status, disability, and sexual orientation in accordance with the City's Human Rights Ordinance.

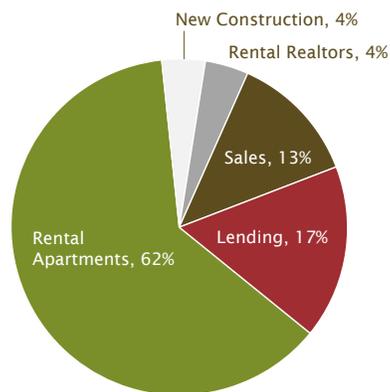

Since the late 1990s, the Program has recorded a dramatic decline in identified discriminatory practices (see back page for full test results) thanks in great part to increased awareness of fair housing laws and City training, education, and enforcement efforts.

How the Program works

The Office of Housing conducts Fair Housing Testing annually using pairs of trained testers to identify evidence of discrimination in the provision of housing by the rental, sales, and mortgage lending industries. Testers are closely matched in all variables other than the selected characteristic being tested. The control tester is assigned a slightly lower income so that he/she is modestly less qualified than the tester representing the protected class.

When potentially discriminatory practices are detected, sites are retested with new testers. If an identified issue is repeated, a complaint is filed with the Alexandria Office of Human Rights for further investigation. The Office of Housing pursues remedial actions for all problem sites regardless of whether a complaint is filed/settled.

In the case of rental complexes where problems are encountered, property managers must agree to disclose all available units to all prospective renters, provide fair housing training to all staff, follow fair housing advertising regulations, and display fair housing posters visible to the public in their rental offices.

THE EVOLUTION OF FAIR HOUSING LAW IN THE CITY

- 1996 City Code prohibits discrimination in commercial real estate.
City Code prohibits discrimination against families with children and augments the protection for the "physically handicapped" to cover all disabilities.
- 1991 Virginia fair housing laws prohibit discrimination against elderliness.
- 1990 The Office of Housing starts the Fair Housing Testing Program.
City Code prohibits discrimination against sexual orientation.
- 1988 The Fair Housing Act is amended to include people with disabilities and families with children.
The City of Alexandria passes one of the first human rights ordinances in Virginia prohibiting discrimination in employment, housing, public accommodation, credit, health and social services, education, and city contracts on the basis of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, ancestry, marital status, or physical handicap.
- 1975 The Fair Housing Act is amended to include gender.
- 1974 Congress passes the Fair Housing Act (Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968) to prevent discrimination based on race, religion, and national origin; President Johnson signs the Act into law.
- 1968 The Fair Housing Act is first put before Congress.
- 1966

DID YOU KNOW?

The Office of Housing's Landlord-Tenant Relations Division provides training on federal, state and local fair housing laws to real estate and property management companies and visits apartment properties to ensure on-site staff are aware of City resources available to landlords and tenants.

The Executive Committee of the Alexandria Human Rights Commission provides oversight to the Fair Housing Testing Program. The Office of Human Rights investigates complaints of discrimination under the City's Human Rights Code and applicable federal and state laws.

Celebrating Fair Housing Month in Beaugard!

In April 2016, students from William Ramsey Elementary School participated in the City's first Fair Housing Poster Contest under the theme "Diversity Makes Alexandria Strong".

"Join us on the street of friendship", a heartfelt invitation displayed on the poster of a fifth-grader

Students learned about Fair Housing and how Fair Housing laws ensure that people who rent or sell homes do not prevent potential renters or homebuyers from living where they want to based on how they may look or talk, how they choose to worship, the language they speak at home, or a disability.

FAIR HOUSING TESTING SUMMARY RESULTS (1990-2016)

A comparison of past test results helps us measure progress in industry compliance with fair housing laws and evaluate the effectiveness of City programs including testing, fair housing education, outreach, and enforcement activities. The sustained downward trend in the number of identified problems is a reflection of the City's commitment to making Alexandria a welcoming community to all.
