The subject property and surrounding land uses are shown on the sketch below:

[Map showing various land uses with labels such as CL, RB, CHURCH, HAIR SALON, CAR RENTAL & AUTO REPAIR, SITE, QUEEN ST., N. HENRY ST., and various numbers and letters indicating addresses and building types.]

MPA #93.003/RZ #93.003  6/1/93
BACKGROUND

The applicant is requesting a change in land use designation for the property at 1023 Queen Street from RM-Residential Medium to CL-Commercial Low, with the intention of rezoning the property from the existing RB to CL. The lot is located at the northeast corner of Queen and Henry Streets and is developed with a two-story single family dwelling.

The surrounding area is a mix of commercial and residential uses, as shown on the map on the preceding page. Adjacent to the site on the north along Henry Street is Oxford car rental and car repair. Adjacent to the site to the east, along Queen Street, are a number of other dwelling units, some vacant, and vacant lots. Across Queen Street to the south are a number of dwelling units, many of which are vacant. Facing the property across Henry Street is a warehouse.

The site, with its RB land use and zoning designation, is surrounded entirely by areas designated CL Commercial Low. The property was rezoned from C-3 to RB in 1978 by the City in conjunction with the rehabilitation of the unit on the lot. The subject property was purchased as a blighting influence as part of the Potomac East Conservation Plan program. The Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority purchased the building and land for the purpose of converting it from a restaurant to a single-family detached dwelling unit. As part of the Conservation Plan the plan administrators determined that a rezoning of the property was needed so that the use and zoning were compatible, and the property was rezoned to residential before it was resold to Mr. Fennell.

When staff drafted the Braddock Road Metro Station Area plan, 1023 Queen Street was kept in a residential designation specifically because it had been renovated for residential use through a City program.

Currently, the property is vacant. The owner/applicant, Mr. Fennell, has indicated that he has attempted to sell and/or rent the property for residential use for over a year. According to the applicant's attorney, the property has been listed with Long & Foster Realty for sale from 5/91 to 9/92 and for rent from 11/91 to 4/92. During this period, the applicant found one tenant interested in leasing the unit, but that tenant was mugged on the property shortly after moving in and then moved out.

DISCUSSION

One of the fundamental goals of the Braddock Road Metro Station Area plan is to preserve existing residential uses. The Inner City Civic Association opposes the change from residential to commercial for 1023 Queen Street for this reason. They feel the rezoning to commercial would allow a further intrusion of commercial uses into a primarily residential area.
However, this parcel, located at the northeast corner of Henry and Queen Streets, is in the midst of a larger area that is already zoned for commercial use and a change in its use to commercial would not represent an intrusion into a residential area. The Small Area plan shows a commercial corridor running a half block deep along Henry Street and spreading to a depth of several blocks as one moves south across Queen Street into the Central Business District. The subject parcel is one of very few residentially zoned parcels within this corridor. While there are a number of dwelling units in the corridor, almost all of them have commercial zoning. If this parcel had not been rehabilitated for residential use under a City program and rezoned in 1978 in accordance with the goals of that program, this parcel would probably have been included in the area designated commercial when the Braddock Road plan was drafted. Staff believes that this parcel’s location along Route 1, adjacent to and across from primarily commercial uses, and surrounded by other parcels with commercial zoning, are good reasons for granting the applicant’s request.

However, there is also a larger policy issue here for the City because the unit was purchased, rehabilitated and sold to the current owner under the auspices of a City program aimed at rehabilitating structures to provide affordable dwelling units, and because the parcel was rezoned to residential as part of that process.

Staff is not aware of any similar situations that have occurred in the past. The Office of Housing has indicated that there is no formal policy that would prohibit the rezoning to commercial, nor is there anything in the deed or in the loan agreement with the property owner (the City holds the second mortgage) that would prohibit the rezoning, although they would prefer to see the property remain in residential use. The Office of Housing has indicated that the City can call in Mr. Fennell’s second mortgage, recovering the City’s investment in the unit, if Mr. Fennell stops living in the unit.

Staff has considered both the land use issue and the housing policy issue in making its recommendation to change the designation of the property from Residential Medium to Commercial Low. Because the land use and zoning rationales for supporting the rezoning are very strong, staff recommends approval of the master plan amendment to change 1023 Queen Street from Residential Medium to Commercial Low.

Re: Rezoning of 1023 Queen Street
    Owner: Joseph M. Fennell
    Lienholder: Virginia Housing Development Authority

Dear Ms. Johnson:

It is our understanding that there has been a request to re-zone the captioned property in order to allow commercial use. We oppose such re-zoning as it would be contrary to the purpose of our single family loan program.

That program permitted us to make the loan to Mr. Fennell only because the property was to be used as an owner-occupied, single family residence. We would not have made the loan had we known the property would ever be used as commercial property.

We do not think that the locality should advance the change in use, where such a change violates the purposes of the Commonwealth's housing loan program.

Sincerely,

Patrick K. Corey
Assistant Director
Single Family Division

<td>This change would promote consistency of use in the area in which the parcel is located. The adjoining properties have zoning ranging from various commercial zonings to residential, with the former predominating. As you will see from the photographs of the structures in the area immediately surrounding Mr. Fennell's property submitted with this request, the actual land use is dominated by commercial establishments and office buildings. See Exhibits A (photographs) and B (diagram of current establishments in the immediate area). The requested change in zoning is generally consistent with the Braddock Metro Station Small Area Plan and involves only 2,000 square feet of land. As this is an almost negligible percentage of the entire area, the overall goal will not be affected. C-L zoning is the best use of the property for the reasons set forth herein. In addition, the structure is virtually isolated, surrounded by many commercial establishments and office space.</td>

To maintain the current zoning and refuse this request/application would be to fail to recognize the actual existing character of the neighborhood and to deprive Mr. Fennell of the effective and best use of his property. - Jim's Groceries Deli
- A&G Convenience Store
- Hair Technique
- Communicaid
- I.B.P.O.E. of W. Lodge

- Run down building with sign advertising North Carolina Barbecue and filled with debris located directly behind property
- Building with sign "Commercial Real Estate For Sale by McNeary Realty"

Many of the residences that do exist in the one block area are boarded up and appear to be condemned. The World Trade Center, a large office building, is located two blocks south of the property.
