

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Phone

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of phone communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can the phone be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of phone communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using the phone?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Email

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of email communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can email be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of email communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using email?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Mail

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of US mail communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can mail be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of mail communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using mail?

Activity 3

Text Messaging

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of text messaging or SMS messaging communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can text messaging be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of text messaging?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using text messaging?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Face to Face

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of face to face communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can face to face communication be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of face to face communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using face to face communication?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Newspaper

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of online/print newspaper communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

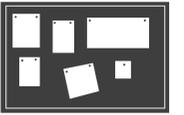

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can the newspaper be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of newspaper communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using the newspaper?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Printed Materials

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of printed materials communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can printed materials be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of printed materials communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using printed materials?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Social Media

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of Social Media as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can Social Media be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of Social Media communication?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using Social Media?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Online Forum

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of a Online Forum communication as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowlege and participation in City projects?

1. How can an online forum be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of online forums?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using an online forum?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Project Website

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of a project website as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can a project website be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of a project website?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using a project website?

Activity 3

Community Dialogue 4 - June 24, 2013

Your table facilitator will lead a discussion about the potential of group announcements as a tool for civic engagement. Your facilitator will select a Recorder to write down your table's response below.

How can the community and the City use this tool to increase public knowledge and participation in City projects?

1. How can group announcements be used to support community networks?
2. What are the advantages and limitations of group announcements?
3. Develop clear steps for using this tool, defining roles and responsibilities for both community members and the City.
4. What would it take to create a sustainable citywide system of community engagement using group announcements?