

RESOLUTION NO. 2633

WHEREAS, on June 11, 2014, Dominion Virginia Power (hereafter "DVP") met with City Council and presented its proposal to improve the reliability and capacity of its electrical system by connecting it with the PEPCO system at the Potomac River Generating Station (hereafter "PRGS") site; and

WHEREAS, DVP already has approval from Pennsylvania New Jersey Maryland (hereafter "PJM"), the multi-state electrical grid manager, for this $165 million project and wants to submit the proposal near the first quarter of 2015 to the Virginia State Corporation Commission (hereafter "SCC") for their subsequent approval; and

WHEREAS, the DVP proposal would involve the construction of an underground 230KV line from the Dominion substation on South Glebe Road in Arlington to an expanded PEPCO substation to be constructed on the west side parking lot of the current PRGS site, where a PEPCO substation is currently located; and

WHEREAS, DVP claims that in order to improve overall electrical grid reliability and capacity, it would need to connect these two substations with an underground 230KV transmission line (similar to the existing one along the Route 1 corridor), along a route that has yet to be determined.

WHEREAS, City Council has determined that it is in the public interest to form an Underground Transmission Line and Substation Working Group to examine quality of life, economic, electric reliability, environmental and transportation impacts associated with the proposed DVP project, and to make recommendations to staff, the City Manager and Council on matters pertaining to the project.
