Stigma: Language Matters

Stigma is about disrespect:
It hurts, punishes and diminishes people.
It harms and undermines all relationships.
It appears in behavior, language, attitude and tone of voice.
It happens even when we don't mean it.

Disrespectful Language:
Crazy, lunatic, deficient, wacko, loony
tune, psycho etc.
Manic depressive (when referring to a person.)
Schizophrenic.
Handicapped person.
Slow, low functioning.
Normal.

Respectful Language:
Mental illness or psychiatric disability.
Person with bipolar disorder or manic depressive illness.
Person who has schizophrenia.
Person with a disability.
Person who has cognitive difficulties.
Non-disabled person.

Some Rules of Thumb:

- Don't focus on a disability. Focus instead on issues that affect the quality of life for everyone, e.g., accessible transportation, housing, affordable health care, etc.

- Don't portray successful persons with disabilities as super humans. This carries expectations for others and is patronizing to those who make various achievements.

- Don't sensationalize a disability. This means not using terms such as "afflicted with," "suffers from," "victim of," and so on.

- Don't use generic labels such as "the retarded," "our mentally ill," etc.

- Don't use psychiatric diagnoses as metaphors for other situations, e.g., a "schizophrenic situation." This is not only stigmatizing, but inaccurate.

- Do put people first, not their disabilities. Say for example, "person with schizophrenia" rather than "schizophrenic."

- Do emphasize abilities, not limitations. Terms that are condescending must be avoided.
